TOTI

Picolit is without doubt the star of winemaking in the Colli Orientali del Friuli. A grape variety with an ancient, noble past, it was prized during the eighteenth century at the courts of France, Austria and Russia. The wine is characterful, with a vibrant straw-yellow hue flecked with gold. The nose is intense yet delicate, the lingering aromas recalling honey, acacia blossom and spring flowers while the bouquet has breadth and an impressive range of nuances. Slightly sweet on the palate, it offers a succession of intriguing sensations that are gradually suffused by an elegant note of bitter almonds. The final, magnificent, impression is one of perfect balance.

Suggesting a suitable accompaniment for Picolit, the classic "vino da meditazione", is an arduous task. A pearl of great price, it demands to be appreciated alone. Serve it - on its own - at a temperature of about 10°C.
